NO INQUEST IN LAW'S DEATH

Philadelphia Man Is Killed

Former President Of American Bankers' Association Hunting Accident Victim

FORMER HEAD OF N. R. A. CARRIED GUN

(International News Service)
GREENSBORO, N. C., Jan. 22.—No inquest will be held into the death of William A. Law, of Philadelphia, president of the Penn-Mutual Life Insurance Company, and a former president of the American Bankers' Association, fatally shot in a hunting accident yesterday, authorities indicated today. Law, who was 71, died in a hospital here last night of loss of blood. The fatal wound was inflicted yesterday afternoon when a shotgun in the hands of S. Clay Williams, chairman of the board of the Reynolds Tobacco Company and former head of the five-man board appointed to administer the NRA following the resignation of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, accidentally discharged when he tripped over a honeysuckle vine. Law was walking a few feet ahead of Williams when the latter tripped over the vine and fell, accidentally discharging his gun. The charge of birdshot struck Law in the left leg, near the knee, almost severing his leg. Williams fashioned a tourniquet to halt the flow of blood and he and a guide, Willie Brower, carried the wounded man almost two miles to an automobile and rushed him to Siler City where first aid was administered. There he was rushed to a hospital here in an ambulance. Williams and Law were hunting in a remote section of the Brushy Creek Hunting club preserve, in Chatham county, when the accident occurred.

WESTWOOD CASE IS NEARING END

A Pittsburgh newspaper for apprehension of Mrs. Westwood's slayer. Apparently defense attorneys were attempting to show the testimony of Mrs. Sophie Schatz, who identified Westwood as the slayer, was motivated by a desire for money. Details of a $2,500 reward offered by Allegheny county also were placed in the record. Sadie Lignowski, a sister of Westwood's secretary, denied the testimony of John Sardula that he found her and Westwood in a compromising position in an alley. Westwood, she said, was defending her from an insult uttered by Sardula. Prager confidently predicted Westwood's alibi will be shattered by the testimony of his "surprise witnesses." Clyde H. Campbell, a consulting chemist formerly with the State Agriculture Department, was called to contradict the testimony of County Chemist F. C. Buckmaster, who said a wax mold made of Westwood's hand showed he fired a gun in the 24 hours preceding the murder. Sadie Lignowski's mother corroborated her daughter's story from the witness stand. Dr. Joseph A. Lafferty testified that when called to the Westwood home on the morning of the shooting he found the "squire" "nervous and apparently grief-stricken."

ITALY REPORTS NEW ADVANCE

Dolo, bordering Britain's Kenya colony on the south and reaching into arid and fertile lake country south of Addis Ababa, the Ethiopian capital. The action was far west and south of the previous southern theater of war. It was believed the Italians might be planning to strike at Addis Ababa through a new route in view of the great Ethiopian forces massed north of Dolo, as well as to win the rich territory. Addis Ababa, Jan. 22.—The Ethiopian government today received a telegram from Ras Desta Demtu, commander on the southern front, admitting he had withdrawn to Negelli, capital of Boran province far west of Dolo. Reports of an Italian victory in the neighborhood of Dolo were denied, however, Ras Desta stating he had "decided to retire" to Negelli with a view to avoiding exposure to aerial bombing on the plains around Dolo.

In the meantime, the blaze was fought with a bucket brigade until the local department arrived and put the finishing touches to the blaze. Mr. Dietterle had but recently purchased the home and was having it remodeled and an addition added, preparatory to moving in the first of the month. The fire started in the kitchen, and when the New Wilmington firemen arrived, had gained considerable headway. Both departments did commendable work in putting out the blaze.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Colman—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rain' to Go
The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks pink. Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c

Bonus Bill Goes To White House

(BULLETIN)

REIGN OF NEW BRITISH KING IS PROCLAIMED

king of arms appeared on the balcony of the turreted palace and spoke through loud speakers: "Whereas it has pleased almighty God to call... our late sovereign... we do acknowledge all faith and constant obedience... to Edward VIII." King at York House The new king was in York house, his quarters in the palace, at the time the proclamation was read, and the blare of the amplifiers carried the words into his rooms, but he did not appear on the balcony. He could be heard, too, booming from nearby Hyde Park the roar of his first royal salute, 41 guns, one for each year of his age. Down the Thames at the Tower of London, the salute was of 62 guns, his age plus the sovereign's salute of 21. At the side of the Garter King of Arms as he read the proclamation was the 27-year-old Duke of Norfolk, Premier Peer of Britain, in the uniform of earl marshal of England; the Clarenceaux King of Arms, A. M. Stuart Cochrane; the Norroy King of Arms, Algar Howard, six heralds and four pursuivants in colorful attire.

Route Guarded

Six battalions of guards, eight of infantry and one of artillery guarded the route. They moved into the city before 8 o'clock, with their rifles reversed and their colors and drums covered with black crepe, but as soon as they took their places, they fixed bayonets, an act symbolic of today's respite in the nine month of mourning. Escorted by life guards, the procession of heralds in five horse-drawn coaches trooped slowly through the Mall and Duncannon street where, at Charing Cross, the proclamation was again read by A. G. B. Russell in the picturesque outfit of the Lancaster Herald.

Lord Mayor Waiting

There the Lord Mayor of London waited in full state, and when the Bluemantle Pursuivant of Arms, R. P. Graham Vivian, approached, trumpets blared three times and the city marshal challenged: "Who goes there?" The answer was: "His majesty's officers of arms, who demand entrance into the city of London in order to proclaim his royal majesty King Edward VIII."

Proclamation Again Read

In the shadow of the bank of England and in the heart of the world's financial center, the great square in front of the Royal Exchange was black with people as the Clarenceaux King of Arms read the proclamation for the fourth and last time. The lord mayor himself led the three cheers for King Edward, and the dignified, scarlet-robed aldermen joined in the hurrahs. In the provinces and capitals of the dominions and crown colonies the proclamation, asking God that Edward may have "long and happy years to reign over us."

STATE POLICY IS REVERSED

Governor Earle Issues Order Reversing Previous Stand On Dredging

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Jan. 22.—In an absolute reversal of administration policies of past years, Gov. George H. Earle today issued an order providing for payment for properties located along and in the river and lake beds owned by the commonwealth and directed cancellation of all permits to dredge coal, sand and gravel from the state's streams. The order became effective today. It will hold until arrangements compensating the state "upon reasonable terms" can be made. Heretofore, such real estate and profits of dredging have been given over to corporations and individuals holding permits without payment to the state. It was pointed out a tremendous amount of new revenue will accrue to the commonwealth as a result of the new policy.

NEW VS. OLD IN QUICK-STARTING! 100,000-MILE TEST CARS SHOW HUSKIES SOME FLASHY PERFORMANCE

Pocono Summit, Pa. (Special) — You can do a lot of things in a laboratory . . . but no test really means anything unless it's conducted under the same driving conditions YOU face. That's why ATLANTIC drove the six Toms River Test Cars for 100,000 miles apiece under average driving conditions; and then brought these same cars — still without lubricated engine-part repairs and without carbon removal — to the Pocono Mountains, where they started instantly after being left outside for four days and nights in sub-freezing weather, thanks to Atlantic White Flash and Atlantic Motor Oil 20-W.

RUSSIA'S CONFUSING EXAMPLE

RUSSIA is making it more and more difficult for American economists who have looked to her for inspiration.

What can be the meaning of the sudden fame which has come to some fifty Soviet workers, taken from factories, farms and mines to be pacemakers for a speed-up movement? One would suppose the government had gone in for an economy of abundance.

Honor and rewards go to a miner for hewing out 102 tons of coal in one day; to a locomotive engineer for speeding up freight trains; to an automobile worker for forging 1115 crankshafts in one shift; to a farmer for a yield of 20,000 pounds of beets on an acre of land.

This business of speeding up production and employment conflicts strangely with the newer economics which calls for the plowing under of crops and the slaughter of little pigs so that everybody may have less at higher prices.

COURT AND LIBERTY

While the American people are being invited by innuendo or open attack to deprive the Supreme Court of its effectiveness to protect our system of government, a passage from John Buchanan's interesting life of Cromwell is worthy of American attention. The authority of our Supreme Court to declare invalid acts of the Congress has been opposed from its earliest assertion, though the people have supported it with the best of reasons since it has been recognized as an important protection of their liberties. To a minority, however, it has seemed inconsistent with the due authority of the lawmaking branch of government, which they argued and still argue, ought as the direct representative of the people, to be unlimited.

This theory ignores the fact that the American people deliberately adopted and have ever since maintained a system of limited government. They have never consented to vest in any branch of the national government unlimited powers. Impatient reformers and politicians seeking power have always rebelled against limitations, wishing an open path to the immediate accomplishment of their demands. The practical political intelligence of the great majority of the people generation after generation has preserved their farsighted caution toward unlimited power, and though they elected representatives to make laws they have never been willing to withdraw the restraints our Constitution and its interpreter, the Supreme Court, have opposed to the unfettered legislative will.—Chicago Tribune.

FULFILLMENT OF A PROPHECY

Among the numerous weather forecasts for the winter made last fall by a great variety of prophets possessing a peculiar mixture of qualifications for their job was one whose words should have been considered seriously. His authority was not the reaction of a goosebump. He did not rely on the store of nuts laid away by the frugal squirrel, the solidity of the beaver's home, the thickness of the black bear's fur, the tendency of the deer to draw nigh to human habitations or the early flight of the wild goose to the Southland.

He was a scientific sort of a gentleman in a United States government department in Washington who, using all sorts of instruments and gathering data from here and there, arrived at ominous conclusions. He said in effect, that January and February were going to be hum-dingers. There would be volumes of rain, frequent snows and in the intervals intensely cold weather. So far, he seems to have spoken by the book. The dismal picture conjured up has been fulfilled, at least in part. Some of January still remains and after that comes February. The prospect is disheartening.

But the forecast of this apparently veracious prophet was not concerned with the winter alone. He drew aside the veil, peered a little further into the future and unfolded a sorry tale. The summer isn't going to be a pleasant season either. There will be intense heat and severe drought and for the greater part of the time we will be living upon a parched earth.

So far as weather is concerned, the future offers little of bright promise. Perhaps we will derive our happiness from other sources—early adjournment of congress, at least a mild degree of prosperity for all and a sweet and pleasant national campaign in which none but kind words will be spoken.

TWO DECISIONS

There has been some disposition on the part of distinguished New Dealers, since the decision of the Supreme Court invalidating the AAA, to emphasize the two decisions rendered. This is doubtless due to the fact that the court was divided 6 to 3 on the constitutionality of the act and did not render a unanimous opinion as it did in the NRA case.

The intent is evidently to infer that great weight should be given both decisions. The fact is, however, that the majority decision is the decision of the court just as it has always been in all Supreme Court cases. When the question of a divided court is brought up it must be remembered that, figuring on a percentage basis, the Court decision got a 66 2/3 per cent and the AAA had to be content with 33 1/3 per cent support.

Now back in the 1932 election, which has always been regarded as a Roosevelt landslide, and which the New Dealers considered as authority from the people to go ahead on a program of which most of the people had never heard, it is to be remembered that Mr. Roosevelt's percentage of the vote was a little more than 57 while Mr. Hoover received approximately 40 per cent of the ballots. So Mr. Hoover, who was regarded as badly defeated, got more support from the country than the AAA did from the Supreme Court. Here were two decisions, also.

It would be, of course, absurd to reason from this that a president must have unanimous vote or even a unanimous electoral vote as authority to go ahead with his policies. The same thing might well hold true of the force of Supreme Court decisions. The point to be considered is that this is a democratic country, or has always been, and the majority must and should rule. It is only when strongly organized and usually unscrupulous minorities get into power that a free people are apt to suffer.

Politics has never entered into Supreme Court decisions. In further substantiation of this it is interesting to know that of the three distinguished Justices who sustained the AAA legislation, one was an appointee of President Coolidge and another of President Hoover. The third was an appointee of President Wilson.

It is very easy to rise in your own estimation.

With Wales As King.
Real Spending Ahead.
Tribute To T. R.
Where Will It Start?

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

KING GEORGE V. of England, is dead.

The world asks what kind of king the Prince of Wales will make.

Americans that have met the young man believe that he will follow the example set by his father.

When he was in America, the prince was asked by this reporter which of all the English kings, dead and gone, he would like to resemble. He made no definite choice, but his people would probably be well satisfied to have him follow in the footsteps of his father, King George.

IF THE soldiers get their bonus money, there will be some quick spending, enough to quicken the pulse of business while it lasts.

Four of New York City's counties alone would each get $18,000,000 of the bonus money. Kings County would get more than forty-five million; the whole of New York would get two hundred and twenty-one million dollars; and throughout the country, other millions and hundreds of millions would be poured out.

Merchants will get more than six hundred million dollars owing on past accounts, and the observer will notice many new overcoats, dresses and automobiles.

AT THE opening of New York's three and a half million dollar memorial erected to honor the late Theodore Roosevelt, one speaker praised President Theodore Roosevelt as one who "saw the necessity for keeping both the legislatures and the courts in their proper places."

That perception showed a high spirit, but if some future Theodore (Continued On Page Five)

All Of Us

I.....I.....I

Once a man asked me to vote for him. . . I said I would, although I didn't think he would be a good man in public office. Still, I'd said I'd vote for him and just suppose I didn't and he was defeated by one vote. . . How would I feel then?

So I did vote for him and he lost by 15,692 votes. . . Then I felt better. Quotation from Douglas Jerrold. Useful thing to remember: "The last word" is the most dangerous of infernal machines, and the husband and wife should no more fight to get it than they would struggle for the possession of a lighted bombshell."

I heard a young fellow talking cheerfully about the possibility of war. . . My stomach turned over and I tried to tell him about the horrible stupidity of war. . . But I failed completely. I couldn't make him see that he was STILL in the war that he thought ended 18 years ago.

The thing I fear most is fire. . . Not fire while it is burning, but the possibility of fire. Waking up to find the house on fire. Coming home to find the house burned down. . . Very silly. But who ever tried to prove that our fears are rational?

One thing I'd like to do is spend a winter in a snowbound cabin in the mountains. . . Just once.

Vanity has its good points. . . Looking back I can remember a few occasions when I thought I was brave—or ACTED bravely—but was actually only AFRAID to confess my cowardice.

I don't sing in my bath. I don't whistle when I shave, but I slam doors.

You're taking a nice ride in the country. . . Sun's shining, air is clear and crisp, everything's nice. Then suddenly bump! bump! bump! Flat tire. . . Pull over to the side of the road. Out you climb! Out come the wrenches and the jack. . . Hundreds of other cars go by, complacently, cheerfully. . . You change that tire! . . . How sad, how very sad!

What Noted People Say

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA. Assistant Secretary of State, Francis Sayre warns against trade seclusion: "If goods can't cross international frontiers, armies will."

CHICAGO. . . Irene Castle McLaughlin defends herself against "whispering campaign." "I object to the innuendo that I care more for dogs than for human beings."

NEW YORK. . . Gar Wood, speed boat king, denies retirement rumors: "At 56 I'm no easy job controlling Miss America at 125 miles an hour. But I'll keep at it as long as I can."

BOSTON. . . Bill Tilden also denied reports he's planning to quit: "I intend to play tennis as long as I feel like it. . . Even if I have to be rolled on the court in a wheel chair."

A new substitute for glass is now on the market, and for many uses it has a host of advantages. It is made of a flexible, transparent material affixed to wire mesh. Good Taste

By FRANCINE MARKEL

By FRANCINE MARKEL

Dear Miss Markel—Please give me some pointers on applying for a position as secretary. MAZIE.

Answer—While your secretarial abilities will decide your tenure of office, if and when you are employed, your department and your appearance during your inspection by the officers of the firm for which you aspire to work will have much to do with your obtaining the position in the first place.

When you go in for your first interview or your test, wear simple, tailored street clothes, eschewing jewelry, frills and furbelows and, especially, an overdone of makeup. Of course, every modern girl must, to look smart, wear some makeup, but a very modest application of it is in better taste for daytime, especially during business appointments and office hours. An executive may have no objection to make-up and fancy clothes, but he will undoubtedly select the well but simply dressed girl in preference to the painted doll who looks as if she has come fully caparisoned for a date with him after office hours.

Speak up with self-assurance, neither bragging about your qualifications nor playing the part of a shrinking violet. By all means, do not be coquettish or try to "vamp" your way into the job. Adopt a business-like attitude and forget your sex and you will make a better impression on your prospective employer.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Nothing that Senator Gerald P. Nye, chairman of the senate munitions investigating committee, could say personally would be as damaging as the actual evidence introduced so far.

The general public does not get a glance at the evidence. It is too voluminous for the majority of newspapers to publish. Even excerpts for the daily news dispatches would take up too much space. We shall give a few brief excerpts.

HOUSE TO WILSON
First of all, there is this in a letter, dated May 14, 1916, from Colonel Edward M. House to President Woodrow Wilson:

"One thing that works against you is the alienated Americans living in both Paris and London. Their wealth and position they have the ears of the members of the governments. Whitney Warren in Paris is a type and I have been told is very close to Briand. Bacon is another."

"The members of the firm of Morgan & Co. are close to both governments (British and French) and you may be sure there is nothing your administration does but what is condemned."

"They try to create the feeling, and never more so than now, that if the Republicans were in, it would be a triumph for the Allies and that if the war continues until after November things will be different."

MORGAN OPPOSES WILSON

Then, let us skip to Dec. 31, 1916. President Wilson had put out feelers for peace. His secretary of state, Robert Lansing, and the American ambassador in London, Walter Hines Page, had been steadily trending the United States toward participation in the war with the Allies, but President Wilson, together with the Pope in Rome, evidently remained hopeful that the Teutonic nations would agree to a peace—a peace with "victory" to none.

That periled Anglo-French loans. President Wilson made an announcement in a provincial paper:

"Our paper stated last week that Mr. John Doe is a defective in the police force. This was a typographical error. Mr. Doe is really a detective in the police force."—Tit Bits.

J. P. Morgan immediately cabled his partner in London, E. C. Grenfell, and here is the cablegram:

"Distressed and mortified beyond measure by the president's pronouncement of this morning, which seems to indicate that he has no appreciation of the differences between the conduct of the Allies and of the Central Powers."

"It seems that, realizing that he had made a mistake in putting it out, he tried to correct it by Lansing's statement, which has rather made matters worse. Do not forget, however, in talking about it, that what the president says does not change the feeling of the country. I still believe it is more than 50 per cent pro-ally and I think will continue so."

TREND CONTINUES
Morgan won out. Intense pro-ally propaganda swept the United States. The House of Morgan succeeded in floating the third United Kingdom loan in the United States.

The United States had voted to retain the Wilson administration on the basis "He kept us out of war," but the documents, chiefly letters, already introduced indicate that the policy of the administration—perhaps unknown to President Wilson—was toward participation.

In testimony the other day, Thomas W. Lamont, senior Morgan partner, asked Senator Bennett Champ Clark (a Democrat, incidentally):

"Are you really intimating to Mr. Morgan that we (the House of Morgan) asserted or had any influence with the Democratic administration of President Wilson?" (The election had passed and the Morgan group had failed to gain a victory for the Republicans, which they believed would have been a triumph for the Allies.)

Senator Clark responded with alacrity:

"We put in a day and a half here the other day demonstrating, at least to my own satisfaction, that you had had no great influence with the Democratic administration through the exchange market, which was the lever, as I suggested, by which the whole neutrality policy of the United States was changed."

The war in Ethiopia recalls an incident in British history back in 1868. At that time, the youthful Queen Victoria was on the throne. On the throne of Ethiopia sat a usurper, Emperor Theodore.

Theodore was obsessed with the idea of marrying Queen Victoria and effecting an alliance between their two countries, principally to assure British protection for himself and his nation.

The Ethiopian ruler made a nuisance of himself, trying to bring about such a match, that a British expedition was finally sent down and overthrew him.

And now England does not wish any other nation to do any "overthrowing" in Ethiopia.

Rev. C. W. Duff In Addis Ababa

Sudden Change Of Plans Keeps Local Man From Scene Of Bombing Disaster

A last-minute change of plans kept Rev. Clarence W. Duff from going with a Red Cross unit to Dessye, Ethiopia, it is revealed here, and, at the time of the bombing of the Red Cross hospital in Dessye the Lawrence county man was in the capital, Addis Ababa.

Rev. Duff had been assigned to the Dessye unit but shortly before its departure from Addis Ababa he was called to a conference with Dr. T. A. Lambie, head of the Red Cross in Ethiopia, and asked to take charge of the Addis Ababa office. Rev. Duff immediately took over Dr. Lambie's duties, and as far as is known, is still at the capital office. With him is his bride, a former Philadelphia young woman, who has served for a number of years as a missionary in the war-torn African kingdom.

Testimony Closed In Damage Case

Case Of Elmer Douglass Against County Of Law- rence Concluded Today

Testimony was concluded before Judge W. Walter Braham at court this morning in the case of Elmer Douglass against the County of Lawrence, in which Douglass is suing for damages as a result of the widening and grading of the Youngstown hill in Union township. According to the testimony two lots with a total frontage of 90 feet on which the Douglass house stands were laid out by the Melrose Land company. They were deeded to a line near the street and outside the line there was a sidewalk and about eight feet of ground.

When the road was widened this sidewalk was taken, and the grade was lowered about one foot. Before the regrading the terrace was about six feet and now it is about seven, and there is no sidewalk. While the land outside of the plot was not included in the deed to the lots, the purchaser had understood that he was to have free access to his home over the sidewalk. At present there is no way of getting into the front of the house except over other property and the only way that it will be possible to enter will be by constructing steps.

Bread And Water For Prisoners In Revolt At Alcatraz

(International News Service)
SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 22—Bread and water—in small portions—was the sole diet today of most of the one hundred convict fugitives at Alcatraz prison, Uncle Sam's "Devil's Isle," in the middle of San Francisco Bay, it was stated by Warden James A. Johnston as he continued investigation of the rebellion of the nation's worst "bad men," who were placed in solitary confinement.

Meanwhile, Sanford Bates, director of federal prisons, was en route here by airplane from Washington, D. C., to personally investigate the trouble.

Some of the prisoners haven't been fed with either bread or water since being locked up yesterday, Warden Johnston told International News Service.

Early this afternoon the highways of Lawrence county were so drifted with snow that fears were expressed that travel by tonight would be almost impossible. Cross winds had piled the snow high on the Ellwood and Butler roads and the other highways leading into the city were in similar shape.

MRS. ROE SPEAKS AT P. T. A. RALLY

National Field Worker Main Speaker At "Conference School"

The Parent-Teacher association throughout the nation will this year claim a membership of 2,000,000 an audience of Lawrence county P. T. A. members was told Tuesday by Mrs. Charles E. Roe, national field representative of the association, as she delivered the principal address at the semi-annual "conference school" for P. T. A. members of the county in the auditorium of the Y. W. C. A.

Mrs. Roe recited the organization's steady growth and pointed out that it has become "one of the most powerful movements for home betterment in our nation." She told how it seeks to bring about cooperation between home and home people and school and school people and emphasized that it in no way seeks to dictate school policies.

Mrs. Roe was the school's main speaker, both in the afternoon and evening. Mrs. Carrie Jeffrey Roberts, first vice president of the association, presided in the afternoon and Mrs. K. K. McCreary, president of the Lawrence County Council, presided in the evening.

Mrs. Roe brought national greetings and the greetings from the district were brought by Mrs. W. E. Brosius, president of the Southwestern district.

Musical features of the afternoon included vocal numbers by Miss Margaretta Hess of the Shenango P. T. A. chapter and numbers by the girls' trio from the East Brook chapter.

In the evening a boys' trio from the Union P. T. A. contributed numbers. Thomas Cramer played a trombone solo and Mrs. Paul McGaffie and Mrs. Earl McKnight favored with a vocal duet.

Dr. G. S. Bennett of the First Christian church pronounced the invocation at the evening meeting and announced tomorrow's second annual Lawrence county welfare conference in the First Presbyterian church.

The "conference school" was also attended by Mrs. E. Selden, vice president of the Pennsylvania congress of the association. She brought state greetings.

Roosevelt should go too far in that direction, it might become necessary for the legislatures and the courts to keep that President in his proper place.

England seems to get on well, without the king keeping courts and legislatures in their proper places.

SOMETHING unpleasant is bound to start somewhere on the earth, with all the new theories, new hatred, new armaments, new dead-end weapons. It might start on the border between Russia and Japan's Manchukuo. When you read: "Russia uses force to halt Japanese," you know the explosion might come at any time.

All would regret bloodshed, but it would be historically interesting to see the ancient autocracy of the Mikado at war with the modern autocracy of Stalin. It would be a long fight, probably.

MRS. ALINDA FRENCH, of St. Louis, one hundred and four years old, attributes her long life to "hard work in her youth and a dutiful son in her old age." She gets along without spectacles, is "not interested in pensions for the aged, and not at all interested in politics."

"People get over that," says she, "after they reach 100." Mrs. French sleeps twelve hours a night, that explains some of the 104 years.

THE HUMAN race gets used to everything. Once our ancestors shivered, fell flat on their faces, when lightning flashed and thunder growled. They thought some demon was after them. Now men put up lightning rods, properly grounded.

Once the comet was considered an avenging messenger aimed straight at sinful man. Today its coming and going are understood and predicted, its path marked out.

IN NEW YORK, on Sunday, in the midst of a heavy snowstorm, there came suddenly violent thunder and lightning, bursting through the snow. Such a strange phenomenon once would have been attributed to divine wrath and clergyman would have preached about it. Now it is referred to the weather bureau.

Nevertheless, we still do not know what happens when we leave here, and that ought to make us thoughtful, no matter how much we know about comets.

THE CORNING GLASS WORKS, which made the giant astronomical lens, two hundred inches in diameter, announces production of a frying pan made of glass. That would have interested the ancients, that first made glass accidentally by building an intensely hot fire on sand.

Interesting to moderns is the fact that fifteen hundred attempts to make a fire-resisting frying pan produced as a by-product a method of glass production that made the great telescopic lens possible.

"MEN HAVE died, and worms have eaten them," and usually their power with them, as though they had never been.

Today's Democratic primary in Louisiana will tell whether the late Huey Long is completely dead, or partly alive. Louisiana's Governor tells his agents to tolerate no interference at the polls by agents from Washington, orders them "to kick them out."

Giving orders is one thing, executing them, another. Huey Long would have done it first, talked about it afterward. That was his strength.

Only one man faced Mayor Charles E. McGrath in police court today. He was charged with drunkenness, and as he has been in police court too often recently, he was sentenced to serve 30 days in the county jail.

New Phalanx Group Gets Formal Start

Second Of New Chapters Or- ganized With The Towns- men Sponsoring

Organization of a second Phalanx fraternity chapter for New Castle young men, the second of a group of chapters scheduled for organization by The Townsmen of the Y. M. C. A., was effected at a meeting of The Townsmen's club committee on expansion, with 10 youths, last night, General Secretary R. L. Meermans announced today.

Mr. Meermans, who is playing an active part in the organization work, said John Templeton was named temporary secretary of the new group.

The new group meets next in the Y. M. C. A. on Tuesday, Jan. 23, to discuss a constitution and by-laws and to hear other organization details. On February 4 election of its permanent officers will take place.

The Townsmen, the original Phalanx organization here, has for one of its goals the organization of new young men's clubs. Meeting with Secretary Meermans last night as The Townsmen sponsors were Lauri Laurrell, committee chairman, and John O. Huston.

South New Castle Damage Suit Is Now Before Court

The case of W. Clyde Smith and Mina Smith, his wife, against George Demenko, is on trial before Judge James A. Chambers at Lawrence county court today. The action is one for damages resulting from an automobile accident at the corner of Trever and Hanna streets in South New Castle.

The plaintiffs claim that their car was struck by the defendant's car at the intersection of the streets and that the accident was due to the careless and reckless driving of the defendant. Both Mr. and Mrs. Smith were seriously injured in the accident and were laid up for some time. It is claimed that their injuries are of a permanent nature. Demenko denies that he was responsible for the accident.

MEN WHO OWE TAXES TO CITY CAN SECURE WORK

City Engineer Glenn R. Throop today stated that men who owe taxes to the city can secure work from the city if they register at the toolhouse on North Croton avenue.

Men who own trucks and who also owe taxes can rent their trucks to the city, he said. They are wanted to remove and haul snow away.

According to Throop, the WPA assigned about 500 men and 52 trucks to the snow removal project. He said that as soon as snow commenced falling today all of the men stopped work.

War Cause Probe Probably At End

Further Funds Not Likely To Be Appropriated To Committee

By EDWARD B. LOCKETT
International News Service
Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22—A majority of the senate munitions committee was prepared today to approve a resolution asking funds to complete its investigation into the causes of war, but the resolution is doomed to failure.

The chairman, senator Nye (R) of North Dakota, senators Vandenberg (R) of Michigan, Clark of Missouri and Bone of Washington, Democrats, will vote to report the resolution favorably. The three expected to oppose the resolution are senators Barbour (R) of New Jersey, George of Georgia and Pope of Idaho, Democrats.

Nye has estimated that between $8,000 and $9,000 would be required to wind up the inquiry, halted now because of lack of funds.

Southern Democrats, still up in arms over disclosures which brought from Nye the charge that the late President Woodrow Wilson and his wartime secretary of state Robert Lansing lied to a senate committee, formed a solid unit of opposition.

In the end, the senate will probably vote to discontinue hearings.

Open Bids For Treasurer's Bond

Council met in the city building today and opened bids for furnishing a bond the amount of $30,000 for the city treasurer, C. C. McKibben. Due to Solicitor R. M. White being engaged before the public services commission at Pittsburgh in connection with the electric rate controversy no action was taken today.

McBride & Shannon offered to furnish a bond for a premium of $2,048.20. James A. Rugh offered to do likewise, except in his bid he stated that the bonds for city and school district consolidated a saving of $432.90 could be had.

Borah Will Open Campaign With New York Speech

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Senator William E. Borah, the "Lion of Idaho," today completed arrangements for opening his drive for the Republican nomination with a speech in New York City next week.

Borah will talk at Kismet Temple, Brooklyn, Tuesday night. The meeting was arranged by Rep. Hamilton Fish Jr., W. Kingsland Macy, former Republican state chairman, and William Ziegler, Jr., former state treasurer and now chairman of the Progressive Republican State committee.

Friends of Borah hope he will win the support of other New York Republican leaders with his Brooklyn speech, paving the way to capture the state's 90 votes in the Cleveland convention. They point out that Borah can win the Republican nomination by carrying New York and 15 other presidential preferential primary states, which have a total of 506 in the total of 997 at the convention.

Refund Worries Administration

Supreme Court Decision In A.A.A. Cases Reaching Further Than Expected

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—The administration is worried over the possibility that the supreme court's decisions in two AAA cases may reach farther than had been anticipated.

This was disclosed today in the wake of a White House conference between President Roosevelt and administration and congressional leaders, including attorney-general Cummings.

The refund of $200,000,000 of processing taxes, which had been held up in lower federal courts on injunctions, was the cause of the chief worry of the administration.

Serious Situation

President Roosevelt invited the attention of newspaper men to the seriousness of the situation referring them to a supreme court case cited by solicitor-general Stanley Reed in his appeal for rehearing in the Rice Millers case.

In this case, Reed asserted that the court more than 10 years ago in the case of Bailey v. George refused to entertain collection of the child labor tax although on the same day it held the law under which the tax was levied unconstitutional.

But in the Rice Millers case the court held the amended AAA unconstitutional and released taxes paid into courts in escrow under injunction.

The Kings Daughters Class of the Matland Memorial Primitive Methodist church, met in the home of Mrs. H. Tate on Franklin avenue Tuesday evening, with Ruth Umstead presiding as hostess. Mrs. Madge Koonce led the devotional period, followed by a short business discussion.

Games were entered into prizes going to Mrs. Madge Koonce and Mrs. Edith Clements, for their success. At the chosen hour, the hostesses served a delicious lunch, with Mrs. Tate assisting.

Plans for their next meeting were completed. It will take place February 17, at the residence of Mrs. Edith Clements, 1105 DuShane street, and is to be in the form of a Valentine party.

We don't like hill-billy music, either, but shooting pappy seems a little drastic.

Rate Contest Is Near Conclusion

Further Testimony Is Presented In City's Case On Light Rates

HEARING HELD AT PITTSBURGH

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Jan. 22.—After nine months of litigation, the battle waged by the City of New Castle against the Pennsylvania Power Company for lower rates was expected to rest finally in the hands of the Public Service Commission today.

Continued from April 24 and 25, 1935, when Robert White, New Castle's solicitor, presented testimony in his attempt to establish that the city's present rates were in excess of a fair schedule, the hearing reopened today before Commissioner S. Ray Shelby, who heard the utility company defend its rates.

Questioned by Homer H. Swaney, Beaver Falls, counsel for the power company, Professor H. C. Anderson, head of the mechanical engineering department, University of Michigan, testified that the present rates of Pennsylvania Power was an efficient operation at the present time and indicated a lowering of rates in the New Castle area alone would be impractical.

The city is attempting to obtain lower rates within the city limits alone, contending that, at present, it is carrying part of the operating expense burden of the entire district in which the utility company operates, which includes Lawrence, Butler, Mercer, and parts of Allegheny and Beaver counties.

Following Professor Anderson, who had made a detailed appraisal of the company, L. B. Round, of New Castle, vice president and general manager of Pennsylvania Power, took the stand and described the growth of the electrical giant from a group of small, disconnected companies to its present consolidated form.

He maintained that the company operates as a unit, not in segregated parts, and that uniform rates were necessary. It would be impossible, he contended, to serve New Castle with lower rates than the surrounding territory.

This came as an answer to White's argument that New Castle could be placed in a separate category for service.

Counsel for both parties told International News Service the controversy would probably be placed in the hands of the commission today for final settlement.

The power company was requested by Commissioner Shelby to file complete operating accounts in reference to New Castle alone. These will probably be prepared within the next few weeks, Swaney told International News Service.

Limitation Of Oil Imports Proposed

Bill Is Introduced In House Today By Rep. Disney Of Oklahoma

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Drastic limitation of oil imports was proposed in a bill introduced in the house today by Rep. Disney (D) of Oklahoma.

The measure limits imports of petroleum products to not to exceed 4.5 per cent of the average daily consumptive demand in the United States and exports.

President Roosevelt would be directed to establish quotas for imports of petroleum, including asphalt. The present excise tax on imports would be increased from one-half cent a gallon to one cent a gallon, and a new excise of $2 a ton would be imposed on imported asphalt.

The measure also eliminates the exemption in present law for oil imported for use in ships.

Nye Has Edge In Wilson Dispute

Action In Making Public Charges Against Late President Held Undiplomatic

SUBJECTS SELF TO BITTER ATTACK

Central Press
Washington Bureau
1900 S street

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—It probably was undiplomatic of Chairman Gerald P. Nye of the senate's munitions investigation committee to charge that President Wilson and Secretary of State Lansing "falsified" relative to their knowledge of the allies' plans to make over the map of Europe after defeating Germany.

However, Senators Carter Glass and Tom Connally, in attacking Nye for his utterance, scarcely were in a position to deny what he said.

That there were certain inconsistencies between Wilson's and Lansing's statements during the war period and documents they signed at the same time (just made public by the munitions investigators) is hard to get away from—but maybe it was overly harsh to call them "falsifications".

UNPRECEDENTED

The bitterness with which Glass and Connally denounced Nye was something almost unprecedented in the senate's history, but the fact is that Democrats of the Wilsonian school are rather angrier at Senator Bennett Champ Clark than at the North Dakotan.

For Clark who defeated the latter, himself is a Democrat.

They can assert that Nye, a Republican, is actuated by partisan malice, but such an accusation doesn't fit in Clark's case. What the Wilsonians do argue, among themselves, is that Clark is willing to see Wilson's memory "smeared" because the wartime chief executive defeated his father, the late Speaker Champ Clark, for the Democratic presidential nomination.

INDEBTED TO CLARKE

The truth is that Nye is greatly indebted to Clark, his fellow committee member, for his support during the assault on him by Glass and Connally.

The Dakotan is one of the best investigators who ever sat in congress, but he is not very well able to take care of himself in a free-for-all, being too mild of voice and manner. Clark, on the opposite hand, is an extremely competent fighter.

It may seem queer that as gentle an individual as Nye should be an efficient inquisitor, but the Dakota statesman doesn't bully his witnesses.

Senator Hugo Black, for example, as chairman of the senatorial lobby investigating committee, is more like a prosecutor. Nye is the antithesis of this type. Nevertheless, he gets what he goes after.

A NEWSPAPER MAN

What makes Nye so formidable perhaps is due to the fact that he isn't a lawyer, but a newspaper man. Illustratively, the late Senator Tom Walsh had a great reputation for his inquisitorial successes, as in the Teapot Dome inquiry, and it is true that he was exceptionally able, but his legal training made him very respectful of the rules of evidence. Apparently he would rather do without information he desired than obtain it through any disregard of all lawyerly technicalities.

Nye has no such compunctions. The thing he wants is his "story", and he doesn't care how he gets it.

He was a committee member, by the way, under Walsh's chairmanship, during the Teapot Dome probe, and kept the Montana lawmaker in a constant state of irritation by the questions he kept asking. Answers to them frequently would have been enlightening, but, as Walsh told me at the time, a lot of them were "improper".

MISTAKE OF DEMOCRATS

Where the Democratic majority made its capital mistake, of course, was in letting the Dakotan have the chairmanship of the munitions quiz.

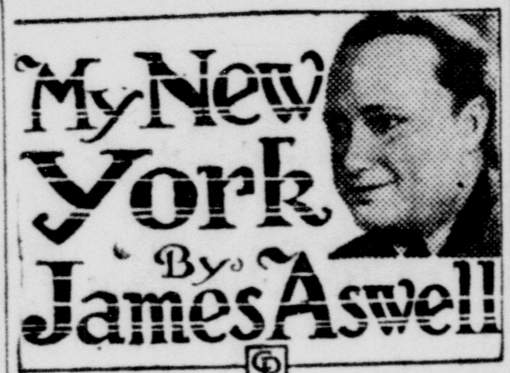

It isn't customary for the congressional group in power to give chairmanships to members of the minority party, but Nye began the investigation. The majority didn't realize the sensation he would create by it, so they permitted him to take the principal part in running it.

They might have foreseen that he would cause trouble.

ANIMAL INSTINCT

HARRISBURG, Jan. 22.—Plain animal instinct applied to driving would prevent many automobile accidents, the Governor's Highway Safety Council believes. The instinct of self-preservation causes the elephant to test a bridge before putting his whole weight upon it. "The motorist would do well to adopt the same policy before speeding around an unfamiliar curve," says the council.

The News, By Mail, One Year, $5.00.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Many Things: How many writers for the popular magazines owe a debt to the late John Gilbert, from whose curious and semi-tragic career they wove many a plot for serial and short story. . . . Gilbert was more intelligent than the average camera poseur; he knew that he had no voice for talkies, and when he made his first speaking and saw the rushes, he was appalled. . . . I met him during a brief trip to New York at that time and before the film was released. . . . He had been begging Metro furiously to shelve the picture, and offered to buy it from them to make another without salary, but it was released—and you know how silly it seemed with John's high-pitched voice and the phoney love scenes that not even the run-of-the-mill movie fan could stomach. . . . Gilbert's real name was Pringle and he had been on the stage since he was one. . . .

Now "The Music Goes Around and Around" has reached the proportions of a national cult. . . . The various "swing" clubs—swing stuff being the 1936 name for jazz—have taken to discussing the ditty and describing it as a morbid study in futility and other much nonsense. . . . But it is indeed a catchy tune and its recurrent sad rhythms haunt. . . . No one yet has got at a reliable story about how it was written. . . . I have heard several. . . .

Eddie Farley and Mike Riley, m. c. and trombone player, respectively at the sulphurous, small Onyx club in 52nd street, seem to have told the glibbie chatter-writers several tales. . . . One was that Mike was toying glumly with the stops on his trombone and reflecting that life was getting him nowhere, while he pressed the first bar down and the music went 'round and 'round until it came out there or here. . . . Thus the song was born. . . . Then there is the yarn about the plastered debbie who demanded to know how Mike played his instrument and in the words of the song, he told her. . . . Then there is the insistence of Harold Hoggson, of the Drake Hotel band in Chicago, who says he played the song in 1931—and who is credited with one-third of the credit and royalties. . . .

Your reporter, with work heavy upon his conscience, spent last evening engrossed in that new 'coon game, Monopoly, in which you buy and sell real estate, foreclose mortgages, make a million, go to jail and otherwise misbehave. . . . Charles Darrow, inventor of the game, which goes on and on and around and around like the music was a jobless heating construction engineer, who evolved the pastime to keep his mind off the fact that the rent was due and he was hungry. . . . The first copies he turned out by hand, then the demand increased and he is in the gravy. . . .

Mayor La Guardia takes a boyish pleasure in smoking and inhales from a variety of containers with an elfin smirk like a small boy in the back lot with his first whiff of corn silk. . . . The mayor's desk is littered with clay pipes, a corn cob and a half dozen brands of domestic and foreign cigarettes. . . . When invited to stag smokers he lets go and puffs one of those 12-inch Joe Jacobs weeds. . . . President Roosevelt smokes only cigarettes, one of the 15 cent popular brands and consumes a pack a day. . . . Always with a holder. . . . Fred Allen goes for the cut-plug chaws of the cross-roads general store fraternity and Warner Baxter has a secret meerschaum-fondness.

Man Believes He Was Kidnaped By Gang Back In 1874

Gustave Blair, Almost Convinced That He Is Missing Charlie Ross

(International News Service)

TUSCON, Ariz., Jan. 22.—Convinced he was the Charlie Ross who was kidnaped at the age of four from his home in Germantown, Pa., July 1, 1874, in one of the most famous abductions in American crime history, Gustave Blair today had asked the Prima County superior court to establish his legal name as Charles Brewster Ross.

Blair, a 66-year-old carpenter, arrived here several weeks ago after traveling 30,000 miles the last four years gathering evidence. He said documents which his attorneys will present in court will include the signed confession of one of the kidnapers.

Blair said he was informed some 20 years ago he was Charlie Ross but that he had not had sufficient money to prosecute his claims until recently. According to his contentions, he was taken to Illinois from Pennsylvania immediately after the kidnaping, and when the abductors failed to get the $20,000 in ransom they asked, was left as a foundling with a family in Rochelle, Ill.

"I am only interested in solving this 60-year-old mystery," Blair asserted. "I have no intention of seeking to share in a trust fund of a half million dollars which was established for the Ross children by their parents. I am rather advanced in years now and have sufficient money for myself. But I would like to have my name changed and establish my true parentage."

JERKY DRIVERS

HARRISBURG, Jan. 22.—The "shuttlefoot driver"—the motorist who constantly jams his foot down on the brake—should take time to think, say the Governor's Highway Safety Council. Usually these drivers are so busy switching from one extreme to the other that they do not learn of the cost of their maneuvers—wasted gasoline, worn brakes, frayed nerves and constant flirtation with death.

Annual Parish Meeting Shows Finances Good

Trinity Church Parish Has Annual Meeting This Week; Vestrymen Re-elected

The chairman of the debt reduction committee, Robert M. Garland, reported at the annual parish meeting at Trinity church, a further lowering of the indebtedness to the bank and described the ways and means to continue in the year 1936 with this effort which the committee had adopted, asking for the co-operation of all. Reports of the officials, especially that of Thomas W. Dickey, treasurer, showed much progress.

Reports of organizations given by the secretaries and treasurers of each showed more work done and a sound financial position. Messrs. William T. Butz, Howard P. Mehan and George Hietsch were re-elected vestrymen for three years without opposition, as no other names had been posted by members of the congregation 10 days in advance as required by the by-laws of the parish.

Fifty Years As Vestryman This means that William T. Butz has rounded out 50 years as a vestryman and 48 years as senior warden. Few church officials of any communion have served so long. Mr. Butz' record is marked by his great faithfulness and his real love for his church.

After the adjournment of the parish meeting the vestry met. The Rev. Philip C. Pearson in appropriate complimentary words appointed William T. Butz rector or senior warden to begin his 49th year in the highest lay office a man may occupy in the administration of the temporal affairs of an Episcopal church. The vestry elected its officers as follows: Junior warden, Robert M. Garland; treasurer, Thomas W. Dickey; secretary, William B. Howe; treasurer of the nation-wide fund, Lloyd W. Strayer; debt reduction treasurer, Robert M. Garland; financial secretary, Miss Nancy E. Bechtol.

Emphasis was placed on the need of the parish for more endowment, based on the experience of the past, wherein people have given money to the church either during their life time or in their wills. It was shown of how great benefit this had been during the recent economic crisis.

SATAN'S BUSINESS

By Rita Dever

AFTER it was all over, Ricky remembered that there had been a Buick agency next to the Coastville National Bank because she had planned to stop there when she had finished at the bank and have the mechanic attach the rear license plate to the car.

Her watch said nine-fifteen. Ghastly early, but a lot of people on the street. Ricky crossed the pavement and mounted the three steps to the bank. The grilled doors were closed and yellow shades covered the windows. Ricky's indignant gaze met the sign: Banking Hours: Daily: 9:30 to 3. Saturdays: 9 to 12.

This really couldn't be! In her purse was a crisp new fifty dollar bill, her bi-monthly allowance arrived that morning by registered mail from Grandmother Van Ronk. At 9:30 she was to meet Bruce Stevens in Harwood, a good ten miles further away, and not another town on the road.

And Bruce wouldn't have any change. Bruce wouldn't have any money. Money was such a problem with him. He was so sensitive about her capitalistic connections. Ricky wouldn't make him money-conscious for the world by dashing off to change a fifty. Something must be done.

Impatiently she wheeled about, almost colliding with a young man who was lounging against the shining brass balustrade.

"Can't I do something?" Ricky asked him sharply. "I mean—I want some money."

"Don't we all?" he grinned. Ricky noticed his collar. It fit beautifully. If Bruce only would do something about his collars.

"The bank will be open in ten minutes," he said.

"But I'm in a hurry," she protested. "In ten minutes I have to be—far away from here."

Now what if Uncle Bert did just happen along and see the Buick in Coastville at this hour of the morning, when she was supposed to have driven to Miami Beach with Nancy?

At that moment the sight of a black Cadillac almost toppled her off the steps. With an effort she recovered when she realized that Grandmother Van Ronk's Cadillac was in Forest Hills, Long Island, with its estimable owner. Bruce was right—she had a complex about her family.

The young man at her side took a crushed package of cigarettes from his pocket and extended it toward her, making a cigarette pop forth invitingly.

"Nothing will steady the nerves," he said affably, "give poise, lend nonchalance and reveal the secrets of magic like a fag."

"I'm not nervous, thank you," Ricky declined the offer coldly.

At that moment the black Cadillac drew up in front of her roadster. One more delay! She never could turn a car out of a close space.

The clock over the bank rang the half hour. A key was turned in the door, bolts rattled and the window shades were raised. The banking day had begun.

"See?" the young man eased down from his perch on the rail. "Time flies in pleasant company."

He followed her into the little building, but went off to a desk at the side. He looked up and nodded as she hurried out. At the door she almost collided with two men.

The black Cadillac was still at the curb but nearer the corner. She could get around it easily. A sharp report startled her as she turned the switch. Ricky caught the shadows of two men crossing the sidewalk rapidly. The door of the Cadillac slammed and the car shot ahead.

Ricky stepped on the gas. This was no place for her. She cut the wheels out sharply as a third man cleared the pavement in a bound and sprang in beside her. She had a glimpse of a dark, swarthy face.

"Step on it, sister!" he ordered, pressing a round, hard metal something into her side.

Ricky stepped on it.

MANY miles later, she glanced at the speedometer. She didn't know the car could do seventy-five so nicely.

"The second garage on the right," instructed the man.

The second garage loomed up with unexpected suddenness and Ricky slammed on the brakes. The swarthy man got out of the car. "Cheez!" he breathed. Then, backing off: "Now travel, sister! And remember you ain't seen a thing."

With a whoop, Ricky went. She glanced at her wrist watch. 10:15. And she was miles from Harwood and Bruce.

Suddenly she didn't want to see him. She wanted a cup of coffee and a cigarette. . . . How could bandits have such nice smiles? Her cheeks stung. There was dust or something in her eyes.

As she drove with one hand, she dug a road map out of the pocket of the car with the other. Then she saw the license plate. She pulled up at the side of the road, fastened the plate on with string from the tool box and drove on. She'd be home for luncheon.

Two figures came hurtling toward Ricky. . . . He was caught! Someone must have been waiting for him.

She was. So were her Uncle Herbert and Aunt Louise.

"Another robbery, Louise," Uncle Herbert announced. "Down at Coastville. The bank!" He waved the early afternoon paper. "Listen: 'Smartly dressed girl acted as look-out for bandits this morning in a sensational daring hold-up of the Coastville National Bank. Search is being made for a blue Buick lacking rear license tag.'"

"Oh," gasped Ricky. "Oh. . . . Oh. . . ."

That night Ricky lay miserably in bed and dreamed of men with blue eyes who offered her cigarettes with one hand and robbed banks with the other.

Next day there was a visitation from heaven in the form of an air-mail letter from Grandmother Van Ronk, suggesting that Fredericka should be in town for the Lansing Ball. On Saturday Ricky left for New York, but she didn't actually draw her breath until the train pulled into Penn Station.

In a month the Florida episode became one of those things that must have happened to someone else. Then one squally April day came a reminder in the form of a letter. The curling "B" at the foot of the note confirmed her worst fears. Bruce was back in her life.

Fredericka darling (she read)

You left me as I always knew you would, silently, cruelly, without a word of parting. (A word, indeed, with a bandit beside you.)

I am now living in the Village, if you can call it living, the present social system being what it is, and humiliated though I am to admit it, I long to see you. I would like to come with this letter. Without pride, only love. . . .

"Oh, murmured Ricky. "Oh!" She conjured up some pictures, too. Grandmother, for instance, who had to know a family for two generations before she considered them acquaintances—what would she think of Bruce, a bathing beach pick-up?

There was only one thing to be done. She must see Bruce. His telephone number was at the bottom of the note, but the thing to do was to see him.

The telephone rang. Hesitatingly, Ricky answered it and was relieved to hear her Grandmother's voice.

FREDERICKA? What are you doing this evening? Well, it doesn't matter. You must come here with a young man to play bridge."

"Why the command performance?" Ricky asked. "You know my bridge is loathsome."

"I most certainly do and only the most awful combination of circumstances makes me ask you. I'm having Lord and Lady Gramm, who are the guests of the Bettrams, and what happens? Everything under heaven! People have gone to such extremes as to drop dead."

"We'll be there, darling," Ricky laughed. Later Ricky called Forest Hills.

"Yes, dear?" came Mrs. Van Ronk's voice.

"I'm so sorry, Gramma, but. . . well, would alive in her hand. "Bruce? This is Ricky."

it do if I brought a man who danced?"

"Who danced?" repeated the waiting hostess. "Are you implying, my dear child, that among your swains you do not have one who plays bridge?"

"There are several," Ricky apologized, "but they're busy or something. . . ."

"That's what independence brings to young women. When I was your age, Fredericka," her grandmother thundered, "young men stood waiting breathlessly, hoping that I might ask them for whist."

"Don't you still know a couple?" Ricky asked feebly.

"At least I am resourceful. You be here by nine."

At nine the family car deposited Ricky in the porte-cochère of her grandmother's house.

"Remember," the old lady whispered fiercely, as she kissed her, "you are to see nothing unusual here tonight."

"Not a thing," Ricky agreed, as she entered the library.

"I'm putting you at this table," Mrs. Van Ronk whispered desperately, "and don't play too badly." Then in her social voice: "Mr. and Mrs. Perry, you know my granddaughter, I believe. Fredericka, dear, allow me to present Mr. Haley. . . . my granddaughter, Miss Van Ronk."

Ricky looked up smiling, blinked, then stared. The narrow blue eyes of the man before her slowly widened.

Ricky recovered first. The year at Miss Sills' school came to her rescue.

"Howdeudo," she murmured in one breathless word.

Mr. Haley bowed. He may not have had the advantage of Miss Sills' training but he knew his situations.

"Cut for partners!" Mrs. Perry suggested crisply.

She and Mr. Perry drew spades and exchanged satisfied glances. Mr. Haley sat opposite Ricky but she didn't dare glance at him. What was he doing here? How much jewelry did her grandmother keep in the house? What was the thing to do? Call the police and say: "I have one of the bandits from the Coastville, Florida, bank robbery."

"How do you know? . . . You helped a bandit escape and never reported it?" Phrases such as "obstructing justice" ran through her mind while Mr. Perry deliberated and finally announced: "One spade."

"Two diamonds," said Mr. Haley.

Ricky's heart soared. With five beautiful diamonds in her hand and two tricks besides.

"Four diamonds!" she said blithely over Mrs. Perry's three clubs.

"Very good, partner," Haley said when he saw her hand.

"You don't know the half of it," Ricky murmured. "Pardon me."

She rose and darted into the hall. She had to get out of here. Swiftly she called the number that had pranced through her head all day. Sheridan 5-8876.

"Hello," Ricky leaped as the receiver came.

"Ricky!" she called sharply.

"Darling!"

"Bruce, can you come for me? I'm at my grandmother's in Forest Hills. I have our car."

"I'll be there, darling. Perhaps it means tonight is ours?"

"It goes to the first comer," Ricky gasped as Haley appeared in the library door. "Make it fast."

YOU'RE a very foolish little girl," he said sternly.

"Why so?" Ricky asked defensively. Did he think she had called the police?

"My God, you are the most. . . ." he muttered several things as he strode after her.

"Who won?" she asked, seating herself and smiling blandly at the glowering Perrys.

"Mr. Haley won," said Mrs. Perry frigidly, "with a little slam."

"How clever of you, Mr. Haley!" Ricky beamed across the table. "I never knew anyone with such a diversity of social talents."

"It's only matched by the wide assortment of your acquaintances," he said grimly. "Two hearts!"

"Three spades!" snapped Mrs. Perry.

"Four hearts!" said Ricky. If he made that, he was smart!

When she laid down her cards and rose, Mrs. Perry looked up inquiringly.

"Pardon me," Ricky murmured, "I'm nervous. . . . I mean restless."

She strolled out of the room without a backward glance. In the hall she dashed for the rear of the house and down to the servants' sitting room. A card game was in progress here, too.

"Henry, there's a train arriving from New York at about 11:15. Will you please meet it and bring a Mr. Bruce Stevens out here? He'll wait for me in the car."

"Yes, Miss Fredericka."

She disappeared up the stairs in a flash of white satin and red slippers. As she turned into the main hall she ran headlong into Haley.

"You are the fastest bridge player I ever knew," she commented. "Did you make it again?"

"A little slam! What kind of a game is this?"

"A very good one, I'd say. We're 'way ahead.'"

"Too bad we're not partners."

"I thought we were," she retorted coolly. "Is that a threat or an invitation?"

"It's not an invitation." Ricky backed further against the mahogany panelling of the door. He was such a nice size and his collars still fit well.

"I thought I knew my women. . . ."

"Pardon me, Mr. Haley, but I'm not one of your women," said Ricky archly, trying to push past him. She was very close to him, her shoulder against his sleeve. Something in the air made her think of thunder storms in July. The issue was confused—so was Ricky.

IF YOU were—or even my sister," he blurted, and then she was whirled swiftly into his arms and kissed fiercely and completely. The red satin slippers left the ground a liberal inch. Then they hit the floor abruptly.

Haley swung around and strode back to the library. Ricky stood very still. The hall didn't do so well. It swayed slightly.

Mrs. Van Ronk appeared in the door.

"Ricky!" she called sharply.

"Yes, Gramma," Ricky came forward wearily.

"What is the matter with you? Mrs. Perry is looking daggers. You've been out ten minutes between each hand."

Ricky wanted to explain that she was now completely out, but words didn't come easily.

"And how did you get so well acquainted with Mr. Haley?" Mrs. Van Ronk continued in a harsh whisper. "Do you know who he is?"

"Do you?" stammered Ricky.

"Play bridge and stay in here where I can see you," Mrs. Van Ronk ordered grimly, ignoring the question.

Ricky made it to the table and picked up her cards. Never in her bridge playing experience had she had such luck.

"A diamond!" said Mrs. Perry.

"Two no trump!" said Ricky.

Three no trump had it. Haley laid down his cards and rose.

"I think I'll have a cigarette, if you'll pardon me."

"Be careful," Ricky called lightly, "Satan finds mischief. . . ."

"Excellent finessing," agreed Mrs. Perry when Ricky finished the hand with a four score. "Your deal, Miss Van Ronk."

"Oh, yes," Ricky's eyes were on the door, "but my partner. . . just a moment, please!"

She sprang up and dashed out of the room. In the hall she caught the flash of a broad shoulder as the front door closed. He was gone!

She raced for the door and jerked it open—just as the lights went out. Two figures came hurtling toward Ricky out of the half light of the porch.

He was caught! Someone must have been waiting for him. But he couldn't be arrested and sent to jail and maybe hung. She wouldn't have it. With a scream Ricky flung herself on top of the tangle of legs and arms. Fiercely she dug her hands into broad shoulders. In the next instant her fingers relaxed. She didn't know how she knew but she did know that Haley was the man on top!

AT THAT moment the lights flashed on. Ricky was kneeling on Haley's back and stretched on the floor, flaying madly with his long thin arms, was Bruce Stevens.

"What do you mean by this, Fredericka?" Bruce panted, almost hysterically. "I come to you and you have me set upon."

"Bruce Stevens!" Lady Gramm came forward excitedly. "My dear boy, where have you been hiding?"

"I've been everywhere," Bruce said with surprising dignity as he rose, "searching for the truth."

"Lady Harnett has been trying desperately to find you. She has a publisher for your Molten Metal. Mrs. Van Ronk, you must know Bruce Stevens. His poetry is so unusual."

Just then Parker, the houseman, appeared. "Are the lights all right now, Madam?"

"What happened?" demanded Mrs. Van Ronk.

"A lamp was knocked over downstairs and caused a short circuit."

The guests returned to the library. Haley's hand on Ricky's detained her.

"Was he what you sent for?" he asked.

"I knew him in Florida," Ricky admitted.

"That was why I was in Coastville that morning."

"You were with him in Coastville?"

"Oh, no. I stopped at the bank to get change. I was to meet Bruce in Harwood but I never got there. I never heard from him again until today."

"You must like him pretty well to fight for him like that."

"I wasn't fighting for him," she said quickly, then stopped and blushed.

"You weren't fighting for me, were you?"

"I thought—you were caught. I hate to see anything caught. . . . trapped." She turned away abruptly. "I think you had better go now, Mr. Haley."

"Robert is the first name—but why should I go? And why should I be caught? You don't think —" and then explosively — "You didn't really think I had anything to do with that robbery?"

"Well, didn't you?"

"I was selling cars at the Buick place next to the bank. But didn't you?"

"I?" gasped Ricky. "Oh, if you weren't one of the gang, then you thought I was the girl bandit?"

"Of course. The papers were full of it, but I couldn't really believe it."

Ricky didn't know quite how they happened to walk to the deserted drawing room and find the love seat near the door.

It was a long time afterward that she remembered to ask: "How did you get here?"

"Well," his cheek was against her hair, "I came back from Florida last week. I was broke so I registered as a bridge player with Postal Telegraph — really good references; family, college and all the rest—and Mrs. Van Ronk hired me for tonight."

"Grandmother hired a guest!" Ricky sat erect. "A pick-up!"

"It only proves," he whispered, drawing her into his arms again, "that you Van Ronks know when to take a chance."

Dr. Ade Speaks At Farm Show

State Superintendent Of Instruction Delivers Fine Talk

(International News Service) HARRISBURG, Jan. 22.—Annual benefits of several agricultural organizations, election of officers and judging eliminations held the spotlight of attention today as the Pennsylvania farm show neared the half-way mark in the duration of its showing here.

Vocational and younger groups, praised for their contributions to the "improvement of living conditions in rural areas of the state" by Dr. Lester K. Ade, superintendent of public instruction, were prepared for one of the show's principal features—a series of one-act plays to be presented in the form of a tournament and starting this afternoon.

Dr. Ade's address was given to farm show guests and nearly a thousand vocational school boys and girls assembled for the annual vocational program. Stressing the importance of vocational education, Dr. Ade said:

"As our agricultural authorities see it, the future of farming in Pennsylvania depends very largely upon the general use of good farm practices. It becomes increasingly important that the average Pennsylvania farmer should become more intelligent about his work. Our vocational schools and departments are starting our future farmers and farm housewives off on the right foot."

Germans Given Use Of Airport

Grant Use Of Naval Station At Lakehurst For Part Of Test Flight

(International News Service) WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Permission has been granted the German Lufthansa Airways to use the naval air station at Lakehurst, N. J., as the American terminal for one experimental flight in connection with the possible inauguration of a regular trans-Atlantic air service between the United States and Germany, secretary of the navy Swanson disclosed today.

Regular Terminal Swanson revealed that the permission was granted last year and that the offer still stands. Questioned as to whether the German airlines would be permitted to use the Lakehurst station as a permanent American terminal for a regular trans-oceanic air service, Swanson said that would depend on whether the navy or any American air service wishes to use it.

A German air mission is arriving here early next month to discuss the possibility of inaugurating a regular transatlantic air service between the United States and Germany.

Townsend Speaker Heard At Kiwanis

The Rev. C. W. Johnston of Los Angeles spoke on "The Townsend Club" before today's weekly luncheon of the Kiwanis club at The Castleton.

After their meeting the Kiwanians proceeded in a body to the First M. E. church to view the body of their late fellow Kiwanian, former Prothonotary Ralph M. Campbell. His funeral was conducted from the church this afternoon.

The Kiwanis club will send a delegation to Beaver Falls for an inter-club bowling match on February 6.

Sheriffs Frame Strict Program For Enforcement

(International News Service) ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 22.—Sheriffs of four states today announced a five-point co-operative program against crime in the rural sections. Details of the campaign, in which New York, Pennsylvania, Indiana and Michigan are participating, were revealed by Sheriff Richard J. Lewis, of Albany, president of the New York state sheriffs' association. The sheriffs will seek aid in attaining their objectives from their respective state legislatures and local authorities. The program follows:

1. Legislation permitting sheriffs to appoint additional deputies for more adequate law enforcement in their counties.

2. Equipment of sheriffs' offices with modern implements, such as tear gas, high-powered rifles and swift automobiles, for successful warfare against organized gangdom.

3. Passage of laws making it mandatory to install radio broadcasting and receiving sets, of standard type, in all sheriffs' offices.

4. Co-operation between sheriffs and all state and local police agencies.

5. Legislation making the sheriffs office a clearing place for reports on all felony crimes committed within a county. These reports by constables and others would be in addition to those which now must be made to state correction heads.

British Hope King Marries

New King Can Marry Whom He Chooses By Own Decree

By NEWELL ROGERS International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Jan. 22.—Binding restrictions of the throne cost King Edward a lot of freedom and put him hard at work today—but the kingship loosened up his heart strings, even though there is at the moment no one to tug at them.

As prince and heir to the throne, it was law that he could marry only a protestant and a princess, and there was only about one left—plump Crown Princess Juliana of Holland.

George III of American revolutionary fame, also the last before Edward to ascend the throne as a bachelor, decreed that the heir must have the king's consent to wed outside royalty.

As king, Edward therefore can give himself permission to marry when and whom he chooses—but she still must be a protestant as provided by law.

Many subjects today expressed hope the king would marry before his coronation a year hence—possibly in the three months' interval after all mourning terminates.

If he does, they say, he will certainly choose a bride from among the many marriageable daughters of British aristocracy, and his brothers, the Duke of York, now heir apparent, and the Duke of Gloucester, did.

And if he does not wed, the line of Windsor will be carried on through the children of the Duke of York, with the possibility that nine-year-old Princess Elizabeth may yet be queen, first since Victoria.

Tragedy and marriage to other rulers and crown princes have eliminated most of the princesses who have been linked romantically at various times with the then Prince of Wales.

Trinity Church To Honor Memory Of British King

Memorial Service For Late King George V Planned For Sunday Afternoon

A special service in memory of His Majesty King George V will be held in Trinity church, corner of North Mill and East Falls streets, next Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock for all of the people of Lawrence county irrespective of creed or race. The service will consist of hymns, psalms, a reading from the scripture, an anthem, prayers and two addresses. "The Evangelical Tribute to King George" by the Rev. Rees T. Williams, pastor of the First Congregational church, who is also president of the New Castle Ministerial association and a former British subject; "The Anglican Tribute to King George" by the Rev. Philip C. Pearson, rector of Trinity church. In addition to these two clergymen, the Rev. Samuel M. Black of St. Andrew's, New Castle, and St. Luke's, Ellwood City, will have a part in the service.

While the Episcopal church is an independent national church, self-sustaining and self-perpetuating, it is a part of a greater whole the Anglican Communion and a daughter of the Church of England of which King George with the civil head and the Archbishop of Canterbury is the ecclesiastical head. Therefore it is natural and fitting that a memorial service for the late king of England should be held in Trinity church.

A musical program appropriate to the occasion is being prepared by the senior choir under the leadership of Miss Isabel T. Johnson, organist.

Library Gets 50 Volumes As Late Resident's Gift

The Free Public library has received an important gift of 50 books published by the Yale University Press, a gift in memory of William McKean Brown, former state senator and lieutenant governor of Pennsylvania and a resident of New Castle for many years. In a letter announcing the books, Dr. Day, treasurer, Yale University Press, says: "I take pleasure in advising you that the Yale University Press is today forwarding to you one copy of each of the 50 volumes published by it and listed on the enclosed memorandum as a further gift made to the library in memory of William McKean Brown; and that it is also sending to you a sufficient number of bookplates similar to that which I enclosed in order to enable your library to insert one of these in each of the volumes thus given to it in his memory. "I hope that the volumes forwarded to you may reach you safely and promptly, and that they may prove of enduring service to the community whose welfare was so close to Mr. Brown's heart."

These books are being classified, catalogued and prepared for circulation as rapidly as possible. A list of them will be published whenever they are ready.

BLEMISHES MADE HER OLD LOOKING

Face Clear Again With Cuticura Soap and Ointment.

Here is a letter every skin sufferer should read. Its message is vital. "There were blemishes on my face, of external origin, and they made me look old and haggard. They were red, hard and large. They would hurt, and when I scratched them the skin would become irritated, and I would lie awake at night and start digging at my face. "But after using two cakes of Cuticura Soap and one tin of Cuticura Ointment my face was cleared again". (Signed) Mrs. L. Whetzel, 2nd St., Floreffe, Pa., June 15, 1935. Physicians can understand such letters. The Cuticura formulas have proved their effectiveness for over half a century. Remember, Cuticura Soap and Ointment are also for pimples, rashes, ringworm, burning of eczema and other externally caused skin blemishes. All druggists. Soap 25c. Ointment 25c.

Kidnap Note Is Given Attention

Claim Copy Of Note Was Circulated In Underworld Before Next Note Sent

CHARGE IS BEING INVESTIGATED NOW

By KENNETH T. DOWNS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 22.—A photostatic copy of the first Lindbergh ransom note, key to the state's murder case against Bruno Richard Hauptmann, was in the hands of a notorious public enemy and was circulated through the underworld before any of the subsequent ransom letters went into the mails.

This information, sensational, if true, is contained in an affidavit in the hands of Governor Harold G. Hoffman today, it was learned by International News Service.

Colonel Lindbergh, himself, delivered the photostatic copy to the underworld figure before even Dr. John P. "Jasie" Condon entered the case, according to the sworn statement.

If the affidavit's charge can be proved, it may upset the entire case against Hauptmann, persons close to the governor said.

For it will be remembered that the state depended on its contention that Hauptmann alone could have written that original note to prove that he was in the Lindbergh nursery on the murder night, March 1, 1932.

Other Striking Facts

Two other striking facts will be recalled:

(1) That the state had difficulty proving that Hauptmann's handwriting was the same as the handwriting of that first note; and

(2) That Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the state police, testified that the note was never out of the possession of himself or his right-hand man, Capt. J. Lamb, from the night of the kidnaping until the baby's body was discovered 10 weeks later.

MAHONING HONORS STEPHEN FOSTER

School Orchestra Presents Musical Tribute In Assembly Tuesday

Commemorating the beautiful works of America's beloved composer, Stephen C. Foster, members of the Mahoning school orchestra yesterday presented a special program in his honor.

The first part of the assembly was given over to speeches on orchestra instruments and then, as the musical program approached, William Strohecker announced that all the numbers of the day would be from the "Gems of Stephen C. Foster," arranged by Theodore M. Tobane.

Explaining the instruments were: Russell Horcher, Patricia Taylor, Jessie Jane Gilbert, Philip Farone and Kenneth Gibson. Following them a musical quartet composed of Lindora Lauro, Nick Binder, Albert Colella and William Howard played the major part of the program. Five violins played beautifully with the players being Ida Jean Mitchell, Jessie Jane Gilbert, Patricia Taylor, Harry McOwen, and Clair Galbreath.

A trombone solo by Philip Farone and a trumpet trio composed of Frank DiPiero, George Farone and Robert Mauck also played beautiful selections. The life of Stephen Foster and the conditions under which he wrote the songs were explained.

The closing number was the singing of "Old Folks at Home" by the entire orchestra group and violin obligatos were played by Lindora, Lauro and Lee Wilkinson.

The orchestra is directed by Miss Gwladys M. Thomas and much credit goes to Miss Jane Kyle and Miss Jane Young for their cooperation in the program.

For years the orchestra has been an important part of the school life of the boys and girls and the Mahoning orchestra is the oldest elementary orchestra in the city's school system and for many years has sent to Senior high school some of the best players of the high school orchestra and band.

Mahoning will organize additional instrumental music classes next week to accommodate the group which received musical instruments for Christmas, it was announced today.

Miss Nannie Mitchell, the principal, is deserving of much praise for her interest in the musical work and her untiring efforts in the promotion of finer music. Mahoning also boasts a band.

"I'D RATHER HAVE A BUICK BUT"

What do you mean, BUT!

WHAT keeps you from driving a Buick—not next year—but now—today?

Is it the money?

Time payments on a Buick are but two or three dollars a week more than on the lowest-priced cars—less than that, when you figure the "extras" a smaller car usually calls for.

Is it the upkeep?

Buick is a big comfortable car that gives small-car gas mileage, small-car mileage on oil. You'll keep a Buick at least a year longer than you'll keep a lesser car—and probably spend less on it for service and repair in the meantime!

Could it be habit?

Maybe you get used to buying in the low-priced field—you get the idea a big car costs too much to run—you resign yourself to small-car comfort, ability, performance—and plain human nature keeps you from inquiring further!

Maybe a Buick is a bit beyond your reach. But let's not admit it until we've got the actual figures!

We'll gamble our time against yours to show you just what a Buick will cost—to buy—to run—to keep in good condition. We've surprised many a small-car owner with our thrifty figures, thrilled them with a demonstration.

Let us show you our arithmetic—and what a Buick can do out on the road. It won't cost a penny—and it may make you a lot happier—with a Buick!

IT COSTS LESS NOW TO BUY ON TIME!

The new GMAC 6% TIME PAYMENT PLAN not only makes it easier to figure the cost of buying on time, but saves money that you can use to get a better car. For example, a Buick Special business coupe listed at the factory (safety glass included, standard and special accessory groups extra) at only... $765

State G.O.P. Delegates Will Be Large Factor In Cleveland Session

By FREDERICK N. POLANGIN
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 22.—Pennsylvania will probably provide the all-determining fulcrum between divergent forces at the coming Republican national convention and presidential election, former United States Senator David A. Reed today.

While delegates from most states will converge at Cleveland this spring with orders for whom their ballots shall be cast, Pennsylvania's delegation, the former Senator told International News Service in an exclusive interview, will probably go unfettered and with "its eyes open."

Said the veteran Republican standard-bearer who lost his seat in the senate chamber during the last Democratic landslide:

"Our slate has not been definitely settled yet, and even then it is subject to a plebiscite next spring. But I will do my utmost to see that the delegation chosen by the people does not go to Cleveland instructed to vote for one candidate or another."

Pointing out that he will be a candidate for delegate at large, and that he personally will take an active part at the convention, Reed continued:

"There is no doubt that the Pennsylvania delegation will play a very big part in the final selection of the man who will lead the Republican party in 1936. We have the second largest delegation, 75, and this time we expect to look the field over before we act."

Most states, said the former legislator, have election laws which, in effect, make it necessary to send an instructed delegation, but not Pennsylvania. Pointing out that

Pennsylvania's body politic must be taken into account by every political aspirant, Reed declared:

"Pennsylvania has a traditional policy of always sending an uninstructed delegation to its Republican conventions, and I hope it doesn't depart from this vital idea this year. We will be in a key position; we will glance the field over and then cast our ballots for the man we believe is best suited to carry our fight against the present Democratic organization."

The former senator could see no advantage in former Governor Gifford Pinchot's "sounding-out" Pennsylvania for Idaho's Senator William E. Borah for the Republican nomination and insisted that Pennsylvania's delegation should have its "eyes and mind open" until the final vote is called.

TITANS SEEK REVENGE AT PITT STADIUM

Titans Ready For Test Tonight In Battle With Pitt

Coach John Lawther Has Westminster Quintet In Fine Shape

Hope To Aton For Setback Last Year At Hands Of Panthers

(Special To The News) PITTSBURGH, Jan. 22.—Pitt's Golden Panthers of the basketball courts have two strenuous engagements ahead of them this week, one with Westminster's towering Titans tonight at the Pitt Stadium Pavilion and one at the same place with West Virginia's Mountaineers on Saturday evening.

Despite the fact that the battle with the Mountaineers will have a decided bearing on Pitt's ultimate ranking in the Eastern intercollegiate Conference, the Panthers will be unable to prepare for that contest until after tonight for in John Lawther's United Presbyterians from New Wilmington they are meeting one of the strongest fives in the East.

The Titans have won one game after another since returning from a disastrous Eastern invasion, and have the leading scorer of the district Wes Bennett, in their ranks. Tall, experienced, and good shots the Titans will rule as heavy favorites over the Panthers, who have dropped three of their last four engagements.

Even With Dukes At present the Titans are riding even with Duquesne's Dukes for a place as district leader, but a win by Pitt would elevate the Panthers to the runner-up berth.

Dr. Carlson expects to start the same five men that have faced the tipoff all season. This would be Billy Jesko, just beginning to find his shooting eye again, and Frank Loucks at the forwards; Pete Noon at center and Luke Rowe and Rags Ravinsky at the guards.

Defensively the Panthers' chief problem will be to halt the scoring efforts of Wes Bennett, who has been averaging fifteen points a game for the past three weeks.

Two other Pitt athletics teams will see action this week, the boxers meeting West Virginia's mittmen on Saturday night in a meet to be run off in conjunction with the basketball game, and the track team swinging into action in the indoor meet to be held Saturday afternoon at the Pitt Indoor Track.

Titans Are Ready New Wilmington, Pa., Jan. 22.—

Revenge will be the big issue at the Pitt stadium pavilion tonight when Coach John Lawther's Titans will play the University of Pittsburgh's varsity five.

Pitt has won the last two frays by late second half spurts and the Lawthermen are anxious to avenge these two reversals by taking the June Cats into camp. The game will mark the eighth meeting of the two schools on the court since 1906. Westminster won the first four games played in 1906 and 1907. The first year their victories were 35-15 and 106-13 scores, the latter the highest score ever amassed by a Blue and White quintet. The next year the Lawrence countians won 20-18 and 38-37.

Athletic relations were then broken off between the two schools until 1922 when the Gold and Blue won their first game of the series 32-26. Another game was not carded until 1934 when the Carlsons again won by a 32-26 score. The next year the same story prevailed with the score board reading 38-32 in favor of Pitt when the final gun barked.

This year two entirely different clubs will take the floor for the respective teams, in a game which has a distinct bearing on the mythical district title race. Westminster lost John Wilhelm and Ray Sweeney by graduation while Pete Leyschok did not return to school. Commencement also robbed the Panthers of stellar Claire Cribbs and Skippy Hughes. Ross Emerick was counted upon heavily for this year's team but dropped out of school to enter the ministry.

The loss of these stars have had different effects upon the two teams however. Pitt has a team of alternates which are considered by many as being as strong as the first five. Pete Noon varsity center last year, doesn't know whether he's on the varsity or not as Joe Garcia gives him a battle for his position. Ted Joderick, captain of the Cats, is held in reserve on the bench on many occasions, even though he is second to Wes Bennett in district scoring. Others who will see plenty of action in the stadium fray are Bill Jesko, Ed Spotoch, Rags Ravinsky, Ed Loucks, Bob Johnson, and Ed Zelesnak.

While Pitt has ten men to enter the game at Coach Carlson's beckon Westminster has only the first five who can really be counted upon. This is due to the weakness of the subs this year. The first five is considered by many to be the strongest in the district but should this combination be broken up a great difference in the work of the team will be noticed.

In thirteen games to date the Lawther coached team has won seven games while losing only three. Pitt's record is not so good having won only eight of their thirteen. Max Hanum's Tech Tartans have beaten both clubs but a comparison by this measure is useless as the Titans have been strengthened by the return of Paul Backus since that time and the tension of a 21 game winning streak over their Oakland rivals may have had something to do with Pitt's upset.

The Lawther team is setting a great pace since their last defeat at the hands of John Marshall having won seven straight against district and eastern competition. In these seven games the Lawthermen have rolled up 331 points against 193 for the opposition. Wes Bennett is having another fine season having scored 199 points in 13 games for an average of well over 15 per game. Wes hasn't had a good night in Pittsburgh for a long time and will be a constant threat to the Panther defense.

Church League Games Tonight

Three games will be played in the New Castle Church AA League at the Y. M. C. A. floor tonight. The first game will start at 8 o'clock.

The league leading Sacred Hearts will tangle with the Central Christians in what should be the feature spot on the bill tonight. The First Baptists will mix with the St. Michaels boys, and the Epworth M. E. team will clash with the St. Nicholas quintet. Some fast and well played games are in store for the fans.

J. Frisbee High In Rifle Shoot

J. Frisbee was high man with 169 in the shoot held at the East New Castle range on Monday night by the East New Castle Rod and Gun club. Second high was held by J. Kalajainen, with 164, while Tom Shaffer pulled up in third place with 160.

The other results were as follows: Glenn Johnston 155, Jake Kalajainen 136. The East New Castle club will stage another shoot Friday night at 7:30 o'clock at the range and everybody is invited to attend.

Sixth Ward Firemen Enjoy Fine Banquet, Hear McGrath Speak

Members Of Championship Baseball Team And Guests Dine Tuesday Night

McGrath Pledges Support For Field, Joe Zeigler Chairman

As a fitting climax to a most successful first-year campaign the championship Sixth Ward Firemen baseball team, the Honorable Mayor Charles E. McGrath, and invited guests, attended a banquet last night in the Sixth Ward fire department building on Smithfield street. Praises of the Sixth Warders on the diamond was sung far and wide as city and independent champions. Mayor McGrath delivered the principal speech of the evening.

To Joseph B. Ziegler and his assistants go heaps of credit for the success of the party last night. It was through the untiring efforts of Mr. Ziegler that the Sixth Ward team got started and there is no bigger baseball booster in New Castle today than genial "Joe."

Very Fine Dinner

The dinner that the men put out last night would have done credit to any first class hotel in the country. Can those boys up in the good old Sixth Ward cook? The menu consisted of roast pork, mashed potatoes, slaw, beans, peas and all the trimmings, and then apple pie that melted in your mouth and heaped up with ice cream. It was a dinner fit for kings, and that was what the Sixth Ward Firemen were this year, kings of the local baseball field.

The eating end of the program out of the way, Joseph B. Ziegler made his only error of the season by calling upon Charles "Bugs" Walther, News sports writer, to act as toastmaster, and, well, the boys suffered through it somehow. Half way through the program Mr. Walther had to leave Ziegler pinch-hit for him, and "Zieg" came through with a hit that kept his batting average around the .500 mark.

Mayor McGrath Speaks Mr. Walther after a few remarks called upon His Honor Charles E. McGrath, newly elected mayor of New Castle, and McGrath came through with an excellent talk in which he outlined the fundamental reason for the police school, telling of the benefits to be derived and of the manner in which the school happened to get started and some of its workings.

McGrath recalled his early days as a visitor to the West Side and said that he has lived in New Castle longer than the Sixth Ward has been a part of the city, the ward being joined to New Castle back in the late eighties, around 1897.

Pledges Support The mayor pledged his support to the West Side Firemen baseball team and to the Sixth Ward citizens, in seeing that they get a first class baseball field for next summer. The mayor also scored a hit with his ready wit and humor in telling of a few of the police court experiences.

All in all, it was a fine speech and shows that our new mayor is going to be able to hold up his end of any speaking program. His talk was very much enjoyed by those present.

Many Called Upon There is no use delving into the speeches of the remainder of the evening, only to say that baseball was the big topic and what an interest those Sixth Ward boys take in baseball and sports.

The following responded with talks: Joseph B. Ziegler, manager of the Sixth Ward team; Louis "Pick" Glitch, business manager of the team; Delbert Jackson, the secretary; Thomas J. Cunningham, Lou Faller, George D. Booth, Thomas McCormick, Captain of the team William "Bill" Gall, "Peck" Houston, Frank Robinson, Hughie Horton and others.

To the following members of the banquet committee go the praises for the success of the party and the delicious food: Joseph B. Ziegler, Hugh Horton, P. J. Hennessey, R. O. Frazier, Joe Richards, John Severa, Tom McCormick, Lee W. Campbell, Leonard Gilbert, Clyde Jackson, Peck Houston and Louis "Pick" Glitch.

Thirty-Five Present The following attended the banquet: Hon. Mayor Charles E. McGrath, Fire Chief James E. Thomas, Thomas J. Cunningham, George D. Booth, Arthur Bloomer, Frank Grodecur, John G. Mariacher, Hugh D. Horton, Lynn Kennedy, Delbert Jackson, Dale Gibson, Frank Robinson, P. J. Hennessey, Charles Fox, John Otto, R. O. Compensation Is Given Gridder

State Compensation For Injured Member Of Pirates Grid Team

(International News Service) PITTSBURGH, Jan. 22.—A precedent was believed to have been set today by the awarding of compensation for injuries suffered by Basil Marchi of Charleston, W. Va., while a guard on the Pittsburgh Pirates professional football team during the 1934 season.

David B. Roberts, state workmen's compensation referee, awarded Marchi compensation following a hearing here for injuries suffered in Philadelphia during a game with the Eagles there.

After he was examined by two physicians, it was agreed that Marchi was totally disabled until January 1, 1935, 50 per cent disabled for the following six months and 10 per cent disabled since that time. He was granted $15, $7.50 and $1.50 per week for those periods.

The decision, it was believed, may pave the way for many suits of injured college players who might contend they were in the employ of their colleges because they had been subsidized.

Another case involving Alex Rado, former Pirate halfback, was considered but no decision rendered.

"The taxpayers," says an editorial, "need a battle cry." What about "Ouch"?

American Woman Golfer Praises King Edward VIII

Bea Gottlieb, Only Woman To Ever Beat Prince Edward At Golf

Says "King Edward Is Human Being, Will Be Modern Ruler"

(Bea Gottlieb of New York, the only woman to beat the former Prince of Wales—now King Edward VIII of England—at golf today gives International News Service her personal impressions of the monarch now ruling the millions of subjects of Great Britain's great empire. Miss Gottlieb is the proud possessor of a souvenir golf ball and an autographed score card, reminiscent of the occasion. Here is her own story of her contact with England's new king during their three matches during summer of 1932 when they played three different courses—Sunningdale and Wentworth and Coomb Hill, all near London.)

By BEA GOTTLIEB.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—I believe from what I know of him of my own personal experience, that the new King of England—Edward VIII—will make a great ruler. He is modern; he is in close sympathy with his people; he is intensely human . . . He has the common touch.

The ascendancy of the former Prince of Wales to the throne marks, in my opinion, the beginning of a new kind of reign. The new king has lived closer to his subjects than any king in the history of the British empire.

Is Modern King King Edward VIII brings to the throne what is representative of the modern day. It means a drastic change. It means that ruling 500,000,000 subjects all over the world will be short of pomp and power. His rule will have all the elements of kindness, justice and democracy.

In the parlance of golf, it will be a new kind of a swing over the British empire. The king is not a figurehead; he is one of the people. His slogan has ever been: "I serve."

On the occasions I played golf with the new King of England—then the beloved Prince of Wales—I had an opportunity at close range of appraising his personality and qualities. First of all, he is a gentleman in every sense of the word; always gallant to man or woman; a man who never took advantage of his position.

Great Principle

Secondly, he is a man of great principle. This was illustrated to me by an incident when we were playing golf. We were on the eighteenth tee and the Prince was out of tees. I offered him mine. After he drove off he was careful to see that the tee was returned.

Thirdly, he is humane and just, and has the democratic touch. I shall always remember my golf matches with the then Prince of Wales. I will cherish these memories more than I would have cherished a trophy as woman's champion of the British Isles.

Shenango Trims Freedom Quintet

Shenango High Passers Come From Behind To Win By 23-21 Count

TANNER IS HIGH SCORER

(Special To The News)
FREEDOM, Jan. 22.—Rallying in the final minutes of play, Shenango high school's blue and gold clad basketball team annexed a 23-21 triumph over Freedom high here on Tuesday.

The schoolboys battled to a 5-5 deadlock as the initial period ended. The Freedom representatives garnered eight points in the second quarter to obtain a 13-10 lead as the half came to an end. Freedom registered six more points to four for Shenango as the third quarter whistle sounded with the home town boys on top, 19-14.

With the clock clicking the final two and a half minutes the Lawrence countians were behind, 20-17. Irvine was fouled, stepped up to the charity line and annexed another marker to cut down the lead, 20-18. Balter for Freedom converted a free throw. Lysko, Shenango center, instilled new fighting spirit into his teammates by sinking the sphere through the Freedom hoop. Shenango was still behind, 21-20. With just 30 seconds remaining, Weresuk, Shenango guard, let one go from deep in the court. It was a pretty shot that found its mark and brought victory to the Shenango quintet. On the tip off, Irvine was fouled and converted the toss into another point as the game ended. Final score, Shenango 23, Freedom 21.

The victory was one of Shenango's most impressive triumphs of the season. Tanner with 12 points, Lysko and Weresuk with four markers apiece, were high scorers for Shenango. Carver, Torbic and Balter were Freedom's best bets.

On Friday, Shenango will travel to New Wilmington for a contest with New Wilmington high.

Union A. A. To Meet Tonight

Union A. A. Members Will Give Final Banquet Check-up Tonight

A special meeting of the Union A. A. has been called for tonight by President John Schaa. The meeting will start at 7:30 o'clock.

Last minute check-up of plans for the big Union high football banquet Thursday will be made at this time. According to Secretary Ed Donley the tickets for the banquet tomorrow night are going fast. Indications point to a big crowd.

Following the meeting tonight the Union A. A. members will indulge in their weekly practice at basketball. All officers and committee for the banquet are asked to be present tonight.

John W. Pattison will be toastmaster at the banquet Thursday night and President John Schaa will present sweaters to the Union gridders.

Scarlet fever is less readily communicable than any other of the infectious diseases and would merit less consideration were it not for its complications, which occur in 40 per cent of the cases and are generally serious.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS' LAND

Several boxing bouts between amateurs were staged last night at the Jefferson A. C. Most of the boys who unfurled punches were beginners, but the crowd liked the performance. The battlers were from the stables of Jimmie Dime, Tommy Leach and Meritt Book. Among those who came here to see the exhibitions were Emmett Rocco, Ellwood City, who was one of the most popular heavyweights hereabouts in latter years; Sam Leyschock, county detective of Mercer county; Tony Monaco, announcer of Sharon; former Mayor Franke of Farrell. The battles were staged during a smoker which the members of the club enjoyed and which will be repeated soon.

Tony Herrera, the Mexican who got his start up the fistic ladder at the Jolly Bowl, had his wings clipped by Lou Ambers, of Herkimer, N. Y., in the ninth round of a bout scheduled to go 10 rounds at New York City, last night. Referee Bill McPartland halted the bout with Herrera reeling helplessly and bleeding profusely. Ambers floored the Mexican for a count of eight in the eighth chapter and took every round except the fourth when Tony held Ambers even. Lou is the most dangerous opponent Lightweight Champion Tony Canzoneri has and the victory was far toward giving Ambers a chance for the title.

Card from Erie and signed Jimmie Dunn, reports that "Maxie Strub fouled out to Lee Sheppard in the second round of a bout listed for 10 rounds here." According to Jimmie, Strub knew he was in for a lacing. Sheppard is a brother to the colored boy who boxed Freddy Hunt, another lad of color, at the Taggart Stadium in the Police Show.

The East Brooks led at the first period 7 to 4, but at the half the Slippery Rockets had taken the lead at 10 to 8. In the third period the Emerickmen came back strong to take the lead at 24 to 12. The final period found the Emerick coached machine making 12 more points to three for the Rockets.

Ambers Kayoes Tony Herrera

Mexican Fighter Well Known In New Castle Kayoed In New York

By HYPE IGEO
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—While Tony Canzoneri is jollying around today, waiting for the bell to send him on his way in the bout with Brecia Garcia, he can "see by the papers" that a Herkimer cyclone is blowing his way.

Lou Ambers punched Tony Herrera out of his lightweight path here last night. In stopping the stubborn little Mexican, Ambers advanced another peg toward a second try at Tony's coronet.

Ambers had Tony so badly battered and dazed, Kid McPartland, the referee, stopped the bout with only a second to go in the ninth round.

Herrera protested bitterly as blood trickled from cuts on his face, but the referee would not budge in his decision. Tony had been floored for "9" in the eighth and had not shaken off the effects of that setback when McPartland decided to halt matters.

Union Defeats Alumni Quintet By Score 25-24

Union Comes From Behind To Upset Former Stars By One-Point

Union high school basketball team came from behind last night at the Union high floor to take a 25 to 24 victory over the Union high Alumni team, composed of former Union greats. The game was a nip and tuck affair all the way.

High scoring honors were held by Davies of the high school team and Morrison of the Alumni with eight points apiece. The first period was disastrous for Union with an 8 to 2 count against the Boydmens. At the half the Alumni had a lead of 12 to 9, mainly through the work of Hughes and Lannigan.

The Unions went to town in the third period with 12 points against two for the Alumni and took a big lead at the end of the third period 21 to 16. In the final period the Alumni boys turned on the heat and just about overcame the Union high lead, but the game was over, and the Alumni was one point behind.

The Unionites were not making fouls very regular, only dropping in one out of seven tries. The Alumni made four out of seven tries.

Union will play Bessemer Friday night at the Union high floor. The girls will play the preliminary game at 7:30 o'clock. The Union high girls last night defeated the Alumni maidens 34 to 16.

Eighty-Four Receive Diplomas At Fine Exercises On Tuesday Evening

BEAVER ATTORNEY DELIVERS ADDRESS

ELLWOOD CITY, Jan. 22.—A land of freedom and religious tolerance is a heritage that young Americans must not abuse, but must honor and cherish the ideals that made our country.

These were the words of advice given the mid-year graduating class at the commencement exercises Tuesday evening in the Lincoln auditorium, Ellwood City, by Atty. Louis E. Graham of Beaver, former United States district attorney. A capacity audience witnessed the impressive event.

The high school orchestra, under the direction of Prof. Paul Winter, played a prominent part in the evening's program. After an overture by the orchestra the invocation was given by Rev. W. E. Minter. A brass sextette rendered "Believe Me If All These Endearing Young Charms" which was composed of Howard Miller, Wilbur Randolph, Andrew Schenker, Alexander Exposito, Glenn Young and Alex Drennen.

Class Speakers delivered the salutatory address on "Accountancy—The Old and the New." She extended welcome and greetings to the assembly and pointed out that it was through them that this event has been made possible. She then told of the origin and development of accountancy from the days of Babylon to the present day. It is now an essential part of business and is not only practiced by the companies and firms, but the housewives as well. Accountancy has become one of the major courses in the modern high school. The commercial course is no longer the dumping ground for the unfit student, but ranks on a level with law, medicine and other courses.

The valedictory was given by Harry McCurdy. He spoke on the subject, "Surgery—The Old and the New." He told how surgery was practiced in the primitive age in a rough, painful and unpracticed manner. Superstition played a prominent part in surgery at that time. The speaker told how in the fifteenth and sixteenth century surgery and dissecting were abhorred by civilization. Then he told of its gradual development with invention of instruments and other wonders made possible by science. The greatest harm came not from the lack of knowledge, but from filthy, unsanitary hospitals and untrained nurses. All this has been corrected, and with the discovery of anesthesia human suffering became a thing of the past. Some cases that made history were cited. Modern surgery is looked upon with respect, admiration and even with awe. In his message to his classmates he urged them to go out into the world and work hard to overcome obstacles in their path for success. "Develop friendships and knowledge as you go," he stated in closing.

Before the main address of the evening the Boys' Glee club, under the direction of Prof. Winter, rendered a selection entitled "Proudly As the Eagle". The speaker was introduced by Supt. of Schools Vaughn R. DeLong. His subject was "Your Heritage and Your Responsibilities".

Atty. Graham speaks. Atty. Graham stated that this class had probably started existence when the world had started to change noticeably—from the end of the World War to the present day. Monarchies have been overthrown and new government founded. But this class has been well grounded in knowledge and changes and should be fit to cope with the conditions. They are the better prepared than the great men of our country, who only had a meager education. The modern student is willing to attempt anything. Their heritage is great indeed. A country of freedom and religious tolerance enumerated the various advantages that this government offers. He urged the young people to use their franchise at the ballot box and make sure that the ideals of our country are preserved. He pointed out the value of becoming law-abiding citizens. There are no substitutes for character, religion, hard work and the home. Go out into the world to give and take intelligently. Be true to your ideals.

Atty. Graham told how the home, schools and churches have moulded our country into what it is today. He urged the preserving and show of respect for all of these, for they are the foundations of character. The dangers of this age were pointed out. In closing Atty. Graham impressed upon the class if they are to succeed they must be true, clean, cool; love their home, church and school.

With the aid of the band, Alexander Exposito rendered a trombone solo, "The Volunteer". The class was then presented by Principal Ralph C. Shaffer and the diplomas were given out by Supt. DeLong. The affair closed with the benediction by Rev. E. G. Aubrey. The complete list of graduates are as follows:

Bonus Bill Soon Up To President

House Prepares To Drop
Bill Into Unwilling
Hands Of Roosevelt

FINAL ACTION MAY BE TAKEN TODAY

By ERIC FRIEDHEIM
International News Service
Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—The compromise bonus bill today entered the final lap of its speedy course through congress as the house prepared to drop the "baby-bond" payment plan into the unwilling hands of President Roosevelt.

Overwhelmingly in favor of immediate veterans relief, house members are expected to vote approval to the senate's bonus measure with a minimum of parliamentary fanfare and virtually no debate.

As passed by the senate, the bill permits the 3,500,000 World War veterans to exchange their adjusted service certificates for negotiable bonds to be issued by the treasury. Although the house authorized immediate payment of the certificates less than two weeks ago, it left to the senate the problem of determining in what manner the payment should be made.

Last year both houses voted for a $2,000,000,000 new currency issue to pay the bonus. This plan, however, became impaled on President Roosevelt's sharp veto message. To dispose of the controversial legislation with a minimum of opposition, inflation leaders withdrew their demand for the new currency issue for the present and swung behind the bond plan.

Eager to complete action on the bill before nightfall, chairman Doughton of North Carolina of the ways and means committee, will request unanimous consent for consideration of the senate bill shortly after the house meets at noon.

Lincoln Day Plans Being Completed

Details of the arrangements for the Lincoln Day celebration to be held here February 12 were developed Tuesday evening in the city building when chairman C. Ed. Brown held a meeting of his arrangements committee. Paul Engle, field representative for the Lincoln Club was present as was Attorney Roy W. Hazen, chairman for Lawrence County.

The celebration is going over in a big way in the counties of western Pennsylvania according to Mr. Engle. Mercer county has exhausted its allocation of 500 tickets and has been given 75 more. Venango county has sold out all of its 200 tickets and has turned in the money. At the present time the minimum attending seems to be in the neighborhood of 5000.

It was stressed at the meeting that tickets could not be held for future delivery. Because the supply of tickets is going to be short it will be necessary to get tickets as early as possible. Once the supply is exhausted no other tickets will be available.

A ladies reception committee is to be formed in this county. Mrs. George W. Hemphill, president of the Pennsylvania Council of Republican Women is going to be a speaker at the celebration and because of this the usual Lincoln Club rule of only stag committees is being broken.

The ticket sale will be shut off one week from the day of the celebration. This makes February 5 the dead line.

French Cabinet Is In Session

Meeting Today Of Cabinet
May Lead To Laval's Resignation

(International News Service)
PARIS, Jan. 22.—The French cabinet convened at 3:07 p. m. today in an important session expected to lead to the resignation of Premier Pierre Laval and possible internal difficulties for France.

Laval was scheduled to receive resignations of his radical socialist ministers, whose support he has lost, and then proceed himself to the Elysee Palace with his entire cabinet and formally resign before President Albert Lebrun.

It was granted the president would find it difficult to locate a premier capable of forming a workable government.

Cries that the franc will be endangered as a result of the crisis already have been raised.

holding the bag in foreign trade, it was shown today by figures released by the Commerce Department.

Exports in December decreased 17 per cent below the November figure, while imports increased 10 per cent in value over November.

'Lake Cargo' Coal Case Is Revived By Federal Commission

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—The so-called "Lake cargo" coal case, which has been before the I. C. C. in one form or another for nearly three decades, bobbed up again today when the commission ordered an investigation regarding lake coal demurrage.

The investigation will involve charges, other than line-haul rates, regarding rules, regulations and practices of the railroads for the handling of coal shipped to lake ports by rail and beyond by water, and will determine whether any of such charges, rules, regulations or practices are unreasonable, unjustly discriminatory or otherwise in violation of the Interstate Commerce Act.

All railroads participating in lake cargo shipments were made respondents in the case. The proceeding will be assigned for hearing at such times and places as the commission may hereafter direct.
